

Slide #4 — Operational Reflection

(Do you recognize any of this in your operations)

At what point does operational continuity begin masking narrowing adaptive margins?

Which readiness assumptions within current governance processes were formed under conditions that may no longer exist?

How much organizational confidence is rooted in actual operational visibility — versus repeated familiarity with stable reporting structures?

Where have decision thresholds become easier to defend administratively than to validate operationally?

What signals currently remain visible only because governance has not yet fully stabilized around them?
