

Slide #5 – SONAR: an emerging ecosystem for open exploration – is in development

Some questions benefit from another model.

Others benefit from another perspective, practitioner, resource, or lived experience.

SONAR is an emerging Porteolas ecosystem intended to help surface those connections – extending exploration beyond any single methodology, discipline, or organization.

The idea is intentionally still developing.

As scenarios surface questions, gaps, resources, and relevant expertise, SONAR will explore ways to connect:

- Perspectives – practitioners and lived experiences that can expand how a situation is understood
- Resources – research, tools, data, training, organizations, and other useful signals
- Connections – people and communities already working within adjacent parts of the tradespace
- Opportunities – places where shared exploration may warrant further conversation or collaboration

For now, consider:

Who else should be in this conversation?

What signal, resource, or perspective might help us see more clearly?

SONAR is in development.